Chuck's Chat — May 17, 2017

This morning on NPR's "On Point" Jane Clayson was interviewing senator Ben Sasse of Nebraska. A large part of the discussion concerned the way that society has conspired to keep young people as adolescents. It was a wide-ranging conversation, but one thing that caught my attention was that society is having a hard time helping young people see that work is its own value. The senator mentioned the need for people to have a compelling reason for what they do. This got me to thinking about church.

Church in the United States is not very well regarded by most of the population. Even when it is looked upon kindly, it is seen by large segments of the population as irrelevant. Frankly, I don't think it's the spiritual part that is irrelevant, because studies continue to show that people want spirituality as part of their lives. Rather, it seems that people see the church as failing to change lives for the better and transform society.

I'm glad that my roots are in the Wesleyan imperative to be both/and. United Methodist Christians insist on the spiritual life of faith in Jesus Christ which leads to new, abundant, eternal life. We also insist on sharing the love of God with others through acts of physical love, charity and justice, and through sharing the story of salvation through faith in Jesus Christ.

What does that mean for St. Luke's? How can our congregation both help all our folk (especially our younger folk) to find saving faith in Jesus, and to find compelling meaning in helping others? It may mean developing programs such as small groups for fellowship, learning, and service; expanded mission and outreach opportunities; youth programming that not only informs and entertains, but challenges to action. I think that we need to develop a church culture in which we not only give permission for people to create their own mission outreach projects, but actually strongly encourage and resource them.

What changes would we need to make in how we do church? How might we become a congregation where we are able to say, "Go for it!" Would we be able to trust that there will be enough resources and volunteers to do all that God wants us to do? Would we have the courage to let cherished programs die when it is their time? Would we recognize new baby programs and nurture them? Would we be able to expand our thinking about what it means to Make disciples of Jesus Christ for the transformation of the world?

I could envision St. Luke's taking the lead in several areas: short-term housing for "Parachute Families;" very expanded community garden projects of several sorts; becoming a strong partner with Fountain of Youth; re-engaging with Habitat for Humanity; increasing our mentoring presence at Prescott; developing a disaster-response team; expanding our worship opportunities to "make room" for folks who can't attend on Sundays, or who don't like organ music, or who don't speak English well. All of these and many other possibilities have crossed my mind.

What about you? What passion has Jesus stirred up in your heart? How can we come together to help you realize your vision?

Shalom, Chuck

Lectionary Bible Study - Thursdays at 10am

Meet with Pastor Chuck Thurs at 10am in the Parlor to discuss scriptures for the upcoming Sunday.

Prescott Elementary & St. Luke's Blood Drive — Thank you!

Thank you to everyone who volunteered to help with the Prescott/St. Luke's UMC Mississippi Valley Regional Blood drive this past Monday May 8th! Your efforts of providing cookies and serving them and writing thank you cards and greeting our guests who came to donate were very much appreciated!

First, thank you for your smiles and caring for each of us both team and guests as it made the day so much fun! Second, the cookies tasted delicious and everyone who needed a couple had one thanks to your caring! Third, thanks to the school district and city for allowing our use of the community room and your teachers and staff for helping with the cookie table and for tear down after we were finished!

Your efforts helped us host 30 people who came to donate their blood to help save a life for someone in our community! We actually collected 26 units of blood which will ultimately serve up to 78 people! Isn't that amazing! By going over the 20 person minimum you also helped earn $276 for Prescott School from the blood bank which will be sent to your school soon.

St. Lukers, you were awesome as we had 22 out of the 30 folks who came to donate! You all are very awesome and please accept my thanks once again! — Mike Loveless, Co-Chair

Social Principles: The Natural World

(Part of a series from the 2016 edition of The Book of Resolutions, which contains the text of all resolutions or pronouncements on issues approved by the General Conference currently in force. These documents represent the official position of the UMC.)

6. Science and Technology — We recognize science as a legitimate interpretation of God’s natural world. We affirm the validity of the claims of science in describing the natural world and in determining what is scientific. We preclude science from making authoritative claims about theological issues and theology from making authoritative claims about scientific issues. We find that science’s descriptions of cosmological, geological, and biological evolution are not in conflict with theology. We recognize medical, technical, and scientific technologies as legitimate uses of God’s natural world when such use enhances human life and enables all of God’s children to develop their God-given creative potential without violating our ethical convictions about the relationship of humanity to the natural world. We reexamine our ethical convictions as our understanding of the natural world increases. We find that as science expands human understanding of the natural world, our understanding of the mysteries of God’s creation and word are enhanced.

In acknowledging the important roles of science and technology, however, we also believe that theological understandings of human experience are crucial to a full understanding of the place of humanity in the universe. Science and theology are complementary rather than mutually incompatible. We therefore encourage dialogue between the scientific and theological communities and seek the kind of participation that will enable humanity to sustain life on earth and, by God’s grace, increase the quality of our common lives together. (next issue: Food Safety & Food Justice)

Think GREEN at the Farmers’ Market

Every Saturday 7am to Noon - May-Oct
Iowa Street from 11th Street to City Hall

Think about garden fresh, locally grown veggies. Plan now to attend Saturday’s downtown farmers’ market. The market is our neighbor located near City Hall and surrounding blocks, just a block from the church. While there, buy herb seedlings and flowering plants. Produce comes from local farms every Saturday through October, 7:00 - Noon. Look for vendors selling grass-fed meat for your table, and those who sell only organic produce. To eliminate plastic bags to carry home your purchases, be sure to bring your own cloth totes. Happy GREEN shopping!

Earth Reflection

"Love all of God's creations, the whole of it, and every grain of sand. Love every leaf, every ray of God's light! Love the animals. Love the plants; love everything. If you love everything, you will soon perceive the divine mystery in things. Once you perceive it, you will begin to comprehend it better every day. And you will come at last to love the whole world with an all-embracing love."
